Springer Magrath is a leading manufacturer and distributor of stock prods and veterinary supplies. Springer serves a variety of niches within the farm and agricultural markets and distributes products both domestically and internationally.

Founded in 1969 by Dr. Magrath, a veterinarian, and purchased by Marlin Springer, Springer has a strong history of developing and offering products that help solve problems in handling and caring for farm animals.

Acquired by Frandsen Corporation in 2007, Springer continues operations in McCook, Nebraska.

Dan Ferrise, President

Dan joined Frandsen Corporation in 2005 as Executive Vice President, with responsibility for working closely with Frandsen's manufacturing companies, providing guidance, planning support and corporate oversight.

Prior to joining Frandsen, Dan served for six years as CEO of MINNCOR Industries, the manufacturing arm of the Minnesota Department of Corrections. He led the successful conversion of the corrections work program into a profitable service and product manufacturing firm, incorporating contemporary business solutions into the organization and building annual sales to nearly $40 million. He also served as warden at the Minnesota Correctional Facility at Stillwater, working in the department of Corrections for a total of 17 years. He earned a B.A. in Marketing and Business Management from Concordia University.
